

PRESS RELEASE, 22.3.2019 - Youthful Old Timers Ciaccio and Hughes to CZ Rep.

“Old-time music” might seem a music with for older people, and in specific places - however, musicians Haselden Ciaccio and Tyler Hughes show that younger folks make this music shine and resound in the 21st century. In a short tour at the end of March, 2019, Hasee and Tyler will join Dr. Lee Bidgood in the Czech Republic for a short tour. In addition to concerts, the trio take part in events linked to courses that Bidgood is teaching as a Fulbright Scholar at Prague’s Charles University, Faculty of Humanities. These musicians are also dancers; they will team up with caller Emily Bidgood for a square dance to demonstrate the solo and social forms of southern Appalachian vernacular dance, and discuss its multicultural roots in the American frontier and its current renaissance. Tyler and Hasee will also join the “Global String Band” course to discuss the complicated transatlantic history of the banjo and its role in identity politics and art today.
